The Masked Bandit mystery

A bandit in a school was seen on the live CCTV cameras. Why? What was he planning to do? This bandit was seen yesterday at the crack of midnight. Seeing this from the camera room, the guard comes out but nothing was stolen. This always remains a mystery why he was there in a Selective High school.

The bandit was there at 11:00 pm as seen by many drivers who drove past the road. He was looking at a plan of the whole school, just outside of the school perimeter, not on the CCTV cameras. The science lab cameras were on during the trespass, and he was unfortunately not seen on the camera because he cleverly blocked it out of the way so he was not visible on the camera.

This leaves a big mystery to what exactly the bandit was doing in the science lab that night. The police were called without any further notice of the situation. The police would now like to talk about the case. "The bandit was found lying on the floor when we barged in through the science lab door. He was unconscious lying near the X - ray machine."

The science lab owner was called to the scene and was asked to discuss the police through what the man had did to himself. "The man has electrocuted himself since he didn't know how the machine actually worked so I'm afraid that the man is dead.

Meanwhile, the doctors were having a hard time trying to help the masked man up from unconsciousness.

The science lab owner said that the man had created a whole new topic which could make a very big scientific breakthrough. This bandit must be a genius. He has figured out the X ray formula which means that now this machine can access to any part of the body and file it in the computer attached. This man has to be a very big scientist.

Turns out that the masked bandit was the great scientist Albert Einstein. He discovered a whole new topic of science. The doctors somehow gave him treatment and after 2 weeks of operation he was alive. Albert then was explained everything by the police and it turns out that they let him be free.

He had discovered the new way of the great world for Science. This was the original story of the great Albert Einstein or the masked bandit.

3 elements: a faulty television set, a bank, a school principal

The Most Precious Television Antique

I strolled up to the front desk.

“South Metropolitan Bank, sir. How may I help you?” said a man at the desk.

“I am David Holmes and I am applying for a job. Today's supposed to be my interview.”

The man searched up on a computer.

“Ah! Your the principal of the school nearby. Why are you here today?”

“Well I decided to retire,” I replied. “Financial reasons.”

“Well right this way sir. The interviewer will be with you shortly.”

I got the job and started work right away. I had always preferred being the follower and not the followed. My task was to assist people at the front desk. The person who I met on the day of my interview worked alongside me. His name was Bob Ross. We became quick friends and after my first week in, we seemed like we had known each other for years.

One day, an intriguing man called Steve Lewis appeared at the bank. I received him and let Bob continue with another client. Unlike other clients, he seemed to pay no heed to his manner of clothing and seemed in a hurry.

“Hello sir. how may I help you today?” I asked.

“Oh, I was just wondering if you could just store this faulty television set antique in my vault for me. It was pricey and I think I’ve got someone tailing me for it. Bought it of a lady named Sherly Holmes.” he replied.

Sherly Holmes, huh? That name sounded familiar. I searched the depths of my brain. Suddenly, something clicked into place. Steve definitely had someone tailing him.

The boss of South Metropolitan Bank was checking on his employees a week after David Holmes heard from Steve. Suddenly, a worker came hurrying towards him and pressed a button on a nearby wall. Alarms blared.

“My, my! Hernando, what’s going on?” asked the boss.

“Sir!” cried the man named Hernando. “It’s the vault of Steve Lewis. Its been robbed!”...

I walked into court. The judge addressed me.

“David Vantullegen Holmes, why do you presume you had the right to rob Steve Lewis of a faulty television set antique?”

“Your honor,” I started, “This television set was never his. It belonged to my mother Sherly Holmes. He stole it from her. I was only claiming it back.”

“And what proof do you have!” interrogated Steve Lewis from across the court room, face draining of colour.

“You told me.” I stated calmly. “Do you have a receipt to prove your transaction?”

“All that for a television set?” asked Ateve angrily.

I inhaled. “YES!”

Steve the foolish fainted of shock.

The police arrested him. I’ve retired completely now. Me and my mother now live together happily, with our faulty television set.

A high rise block of flats, A huge Python and a Magic Potion which makes you invisible.

The Magic Potion

I walked down the lane full of houses everyone stared at me like I was a new form of life. Every little window was open while I was walking. A thousand eyes all looking at me. Finally, out of the street it was much better because I could be myself I am a huge python and most people think I am dangerous or harmful that is why they always look at me. I made it towards my flat in a huge building of high rise flats. I realised the weather over here had changed recently and rapidly.

Suddenly vast winds started to pick up I dashed into the flat while a miniscule light figure glared in my eyes brighter and brighter and brighter until I could not see.

The winds stopped and the glare went away , however there was a bottle filled with liquid. I pondered " what was it is is poisonous or is is just water?"

It had a message on it. " Daniel if you drink this you will get granted with a power of invisibility."

I seemed cool but on it was a archie symbol. I reminded my of my uncle Herbert's tattoo. I slept with eccentric dreams about a missing cave and ancient rivers until...

"Huh huh huh huh!" I gasp for air and exit my room.

I decided to drink the potion!

As I made my way to the rooftop I had to pass my parents room and brothers room without getting caught.

Slime marks came on the floor board as I pass my parents room they where snoringvery loud. Until... My mum wakes up I sprinted into the most close room. "Uh Oh!" I whispered loudly it's my brother's room I walk very slowly and tried to close the door. But it creeked very loudly.

I boltedd to lift and kept pressing the up button, but as soon as I made it to the rooftop!

" Shatter!" the potion broke into many pieces.

" I hoped no one heard!"
